Chocolate

“we literally had no idea what we were doing...” -Geoff

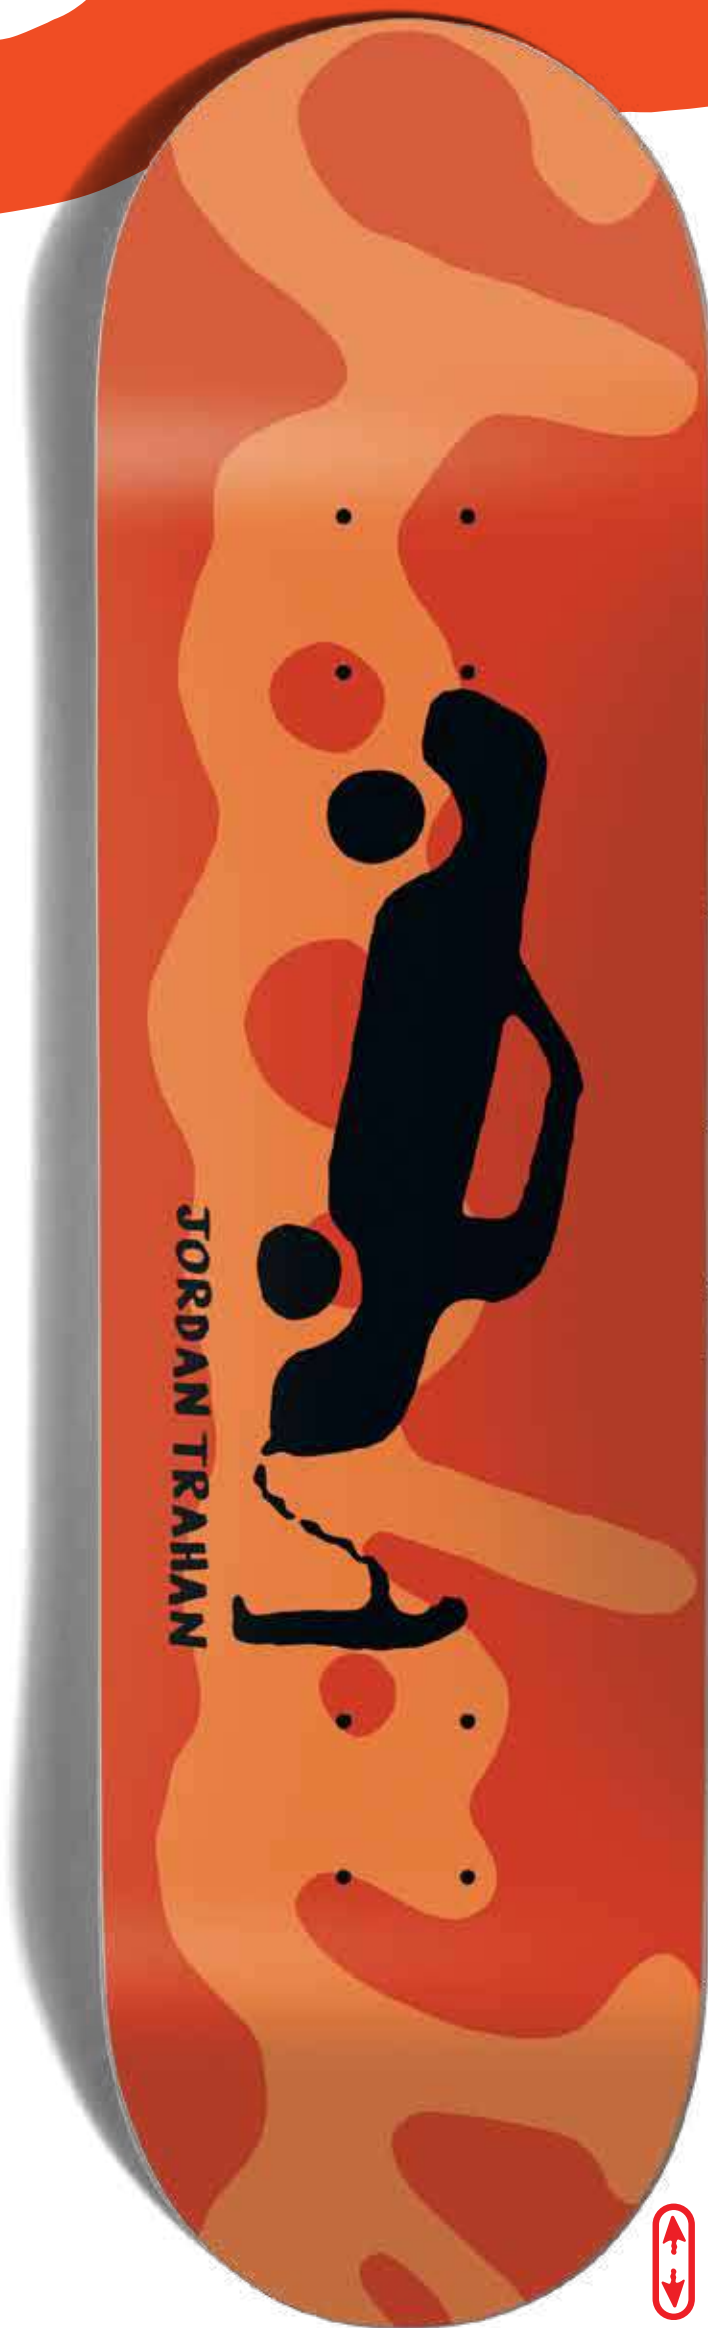

Take yourself back to 1997. A young art student from Cal Arts is at Chocolate HQ in Torrance, California pouring chocolate sauce into a foam-core mold.

Geoff McFetridge is working on his first board series for Chocolate. McTNT, as we called him, was introduced to the Art Dump by fellow Cal Arts alumni and Girl in-house artists, Bucky Fukumoto and Johannes Gamble. Hannes video taped the process and later created the animation for Chico, Gabriel, Gino and Keenan in MOUSE and the series shown on the left. Fast forward 30 years. A now much respected and sought after artist, McFetridge heeds the call to pour more Chocolate Drips.

Thank you, Geoff. -Jenkins

One thing skateboarders agree on are the handful of legends who have left an indelible mark in skateboarding and art making. Girl is proud to announce that four of those heavies have graciously contributed their time and creativity to Volume 2 of the Modernica Girl Project. It is with much appreciation and gratitude that we introduce our collaborators for year two...

ED TEMPLETON / MARK GONZALES / NATAS KAUPAS / LANCE MOUNTAIN

Modernica's reputation for exceptional craftsmanship and beautiful aesthetics, in many ways parallels the perfect sleekness of a skateboard's design and construction. This partnership has resulted in the construction of four beautifully designed versions of Girl's iconic Wooden OG Doll.

Each collectable doll stands 22.125" tall and features the artwork of legends Lance Mountain, Mark Gonzales, Natas Kaupas and Ed Templeton. The doll itself is dutifully presented in a snug foam bed and inserted into a classy black box.
